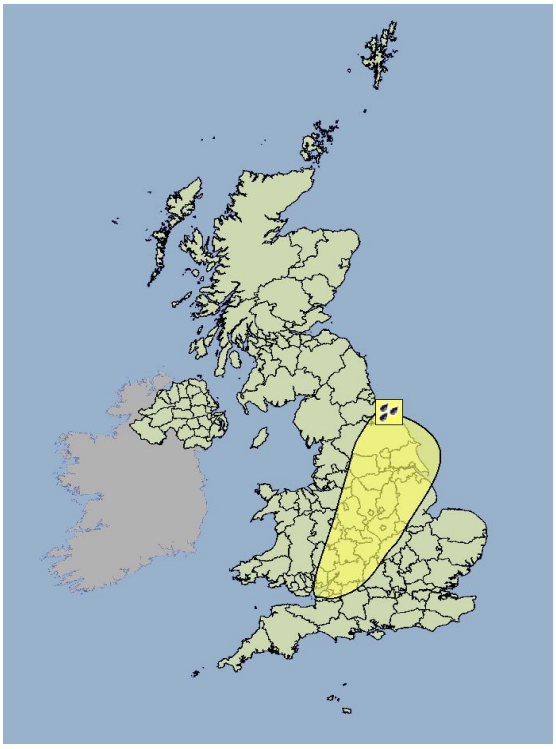
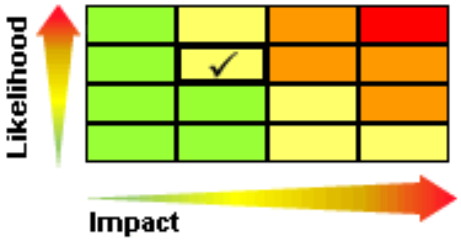
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Heavy rain may lead to localised rainfall accumulations of 20-30 mm in 1-2 hours, with some places perhaps seeing 40-60 mm in 3-6 hours. This may cause some travel disruption during rush hour this evening. The threat of heavy rain will clear eastwards later in the night, clearing western parts of the warning area by around midnight.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 15:00 on Thu, 25th Aug 2016 until 04:00 on Fri, 26th Aug 2016

Areas of rain, locally thundery, will develop across the warning area during Thursday afternoon, evening and overnight. This will be heavy at times and may lead to some localised disruption.

Lightning will be an additional hazard, especially across areas south of Birmingham.
